APLA ENDORSES NETWORK PLAN

During a special meeting held on July 25, State Library representatives outlined a three-year network development plan to members of the Association of Public Library Administrators (APLA). Betty E. Callaham, State Librarian, stressed that the proposed integrated online system must serve the needs of State Government as well as of South Carolina libraries in compliance with the State Library's mandate to provide information services to the legislature and state agencies in addition to being the library development and interlibrary cooperation agency. The scenario for development of the South Carolina Library network outlines a three phase program. Phase I envisions the installation of an integrated system at the State Library, putting the SCSL catalog online and implementing a circulation/interlibrary loan module. During the same time period, a communications system for accessing the catalog will be identified, tested, and installed in selected public libraries and state agencies. Phase II calls for the implementation of the South Carolina network for catalog access, interlibrary loan, state documents depository, and electronic mail and for providing communication access to remaining public libraries, state agencies, and those academic and TEC libraries choosing to participate in the system. During this period, a demonstration project will test the feasibility of school library participation in the system. Phase III will involve the development of a statewide union list of serials to include the holdings of the State Library, the University of South Carolina, SOLINET/OCLC member libraries, and possibly other libraries. Another activity calls for putting the Monthly Catalog of Federal Documents online and providing holdings information for South Carolina federal depository libraries. Communications access to the system will also be provided for school libraries in districts which permit interlibrary cooperation.

Concurrent with this three-year program, the State Library proposes carrying out a number of related activities. These will include investigation and evaluation of developing technologies and projects which may have application for the S. C. library network, including: (1) the Linked Systems Project or other means of linking local library systems; (2) optical disks and other data storage techniques; and

(3) distributed processing systems. The State Library will use LSCA funds to assist local libraries with conversion of bibliographic records to machine readable form for automation of internal functions and eventual inclusion in a state union catalog or linked systems project. It will also monitor development of state microwave telecommunications system and other communication innovations for network applications.

Miss Callaham explained that the State Library is not recommending the development of a statewide union catalog for at least three years for the following reasons: the high cost of replicating bibliographic records already accessible through the SOLINET/OCLC system; continuing questions concerning the OCLC copyright claim; and developing technologies which may change the direction of network development. Specifically, the possibility of linking local automated systems and new information storage methods may make a decentralized network more efficient and cost effective than a centralized union database. By the time the State Library's catalog is put online and the communication system and related activities fully implemented, it will be easier to determine the best approach for the next step in building a state network.

John Landrum, Network Project Director, described various approaches through which the integrated online system might be developed. These include mounting the State Library catalog at SOLINET and putting a circulation/ILL system at the State Library, purchasing the (SOLINET) HRSS software and mounting it on a Burroughs computer at IRM (Division of Information Resource Management), mounting a system on IRM's IBM mainframe, or purchasing a turnkey system. Advantages and disadvantages plus cost factors were described for each plan. Mr. Landrum also described a communications system based on microcomputers and software which could be used to access the online system. The same micros could be used for internal functions within the libraries also.

APLA members endorsed the plan presented by the State Library and agreed to support requests for funding. The State Library's FY 86 budget request hearings will be held during the last two weeks of September, and the Budget and Control Board's recommended allocation should be known by October. If the Budget and Control Board action is favorable, further planning and development of the network could begin immediately to utilize currently available funding.

At the American Library Association (ALA) conference held in Dallas, it was announced that Beverly P. Lynch, University Librarian, University of Illinois at Chicago, was elected Vice-President/President-Elect of the American Library Association in the 1984 election. Patricia Schuman, President, Neal-Schuman Publishers in New York, won the contest for treasurer. ALA members also adopted a five-year dues schedule that will increase regular member dues from $50 to $75 in $5 per year increments. Other membership categories will experience similar increases.

SOUTH CAROLINIAN NOMINATED TO NCLIS

Wanda L. Forbes of Clover has been nominated by President Reagan to the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science (NCLIS), the 15-member national library policy advisory board. Mrs. Forbes, who was recommended for the post by Secretary of Education Bell, must be confirmed by the Senate when it reconvenes following the convention recess. She will be the first South Carolinian to serve on the Commission which advises the President and Congress on policy matters relating to libraries and information science. As a former school librarian and former member of the South Carolina Commission on Higher Education, she has stated that she will seek to emphasize the importance of the role of school libraries as well as public libraries in the current drive to upgrade education.

Mrs. Forbes, a graduate of Queens College in Charlotte, received her master of arts in teaching and certification in English and school librarianship from Winthrop College in 1969. From 1965 to 1972, she served as Librarian at Kinard Elementary School in Clover, and was the Media Specialist at Gaston Day School in Gastonia, North Carolina from 1972 to 1975.

Her participation on various advisory boards has included serving as a member of the South Carolina Commission on Higher Education (March 1975-1978), the Board of Directors of the Palmetto State Teachers Association (1976-1979), and the Advisory Council to the Museum of Education, University South Carolina, 1977-1979. Her professional activities include membership in the South Carolina Library Association, the South Carolina Association of School Librarians, the Southeastern Library Association, the Friends of the York County Public Library, and the Palmetto State Teachers Association.

Mrs. Forbes has been an active member of the state Republican Party for many years. She is currently the Republican candidate from District 47, York County, for the State House of Representatives. Other political activities have included First Vice-Chairman of the York County Republican Party, Editor of the York County Republican Newsletter, state convention delegate since 1962, and Coordinator of the Reagan for President campaign for western York County in 1980. She presently serves as State Committeeman from York County and will be a South Carolina delegate to the Republican National Convention next month in Dallas.

SOUTH CAROLINA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION WINS FIRST STATE INTELLECTUAL FREEDOM AWARD

The South Carolina Library Association (SCLA) Intellectual Freedom Committee (IFC) is the recipient of the American Library Association's (ALA) first annual Intellectual Freedom Round Table (IFRT) State Award for the most creative and successful intellectual freedom project produced by a state committee. Funded by Social Issues Resources Services, the $1,000 prize was presented by Elliot Goldstein, President of SIRS, to Daniel Barron, immediate past chair of the SCLA/IFC on June 24 at the ALA annual conference in Dallas. The winning project was jointly sponsored by the SCLA/IFC and the South Carolina Association of School Librarians. In addition, matching grants were received from the South Carolina Committee for the Humanities and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The theme of the program, which was presented on May 21, 1983, was "The First Branch of the Palmetto Tree: Intellectual Freedom in South Carolina Libraries." The event was comprised of three parts. Part I consisted of a teleconference to 200 people across the state as an open exchange of ideas using a moderator/panel approach. The main topic of the panel discussion was "Censorship and the Role of the Library, Librarian, and Educational Institution in Intellectual Freedom." Part II consisted of eleven regional follow-up workshops on, "What to do Before, During and After the Censor Arrives!" Part III was the development of an intellectual freedom handbook for South Carolina.

STATE LIBRARY EMPLOYEES RECOGNIZED FOR SERVICE

On July 18, the South Carolina State Library Board presented two of the library's staff members with individual awards which were bestowed for the first time in 1984.

Betty Q. Onley, Business Manager, was presented with the Distinguished Service Award in recognition of her twenty-five years of outstanding service to the South Carolina State Library. The award cited Mrs. Onley for her contributions - "Today she fills a key role on the staff, participating in fiscal policy decisions and supervising a department essential to State Library operations."

Boyce Steadman, Tape Technician, South Carolina State Library Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, received the Meritorious Service Award for his assistance in implementing automation of the Division's records and procedures. The award noted his "knowledge of electronic technology, acquired on his own time, enabled him to evaluate BPH's computer needs, analyze available hardware and software, and successfully implement an automated system."

FEDERAL LIBRARY APPROPRIATIONS, FY 1985

In a departure from tradition, action on education and library program funding has been initiated by the Senate. On June 19, the Senate Labor-HHS-Education Appropriations Subcommittee recommended, and on June 26, the full Appropriations Committee approved S. 2836, S. Rept. 98-544, at the amounts listed below. The House L-HHS-ED Appropriations Subcommittee met June 26 in closed session to make their recommendations. As has been their practice in recent years, the Subcommittee embargoed the results. The House subcommittee amounts have been particularly closely held this year and are not yet known.

(figures in thousands)	FY 1984 Approp.	FY 1985 Reagan Request	FY 1985 Senate Committee	FY 1985 House Subcom.
Library Services & Construction Act

Higher Education Act
Title II-A, college lib. resources	-0-	-0-	-0-	?

Chapter 2 state block grant	479,420	728,879	531,820	?
National Commission on Libraries and Information Science	674	690	720	?

The Senate committee report gives a general rationale for ignoring the President's recommendation and increasing many of the programs: "For the third consecutive year, the administration has proposed complete elimination of the library programs administered by the Department of Education. For the third year in a row, the Committee has flatly rejected this proposal. Libraries are an integral part of the Nation's educational systems and national commitment to lifelong learning. The Federal contribution to these programs, while modest, is crucial to the ability of libraries to serve the total population, and in particular, such groups as the handicapped, the homebound, economically needy, language minorities and others who require special and often more costly services. This Federal investment must and will continue to assist communities to revise such services to enhance the quality of library programs for the benefit of our citizens."

For Library Services and Contruction Act (LSCA) Title II construction, the committee noted that twice as many projects were submitted to states as could be approved under the FY '83 Jobs Bill funding of $50 million. "According to the American Library Association, public library construction needs for 1985 alone total $400 million," said the report.

The next step in the budgetary process will be full committee action in the House.

NCLIS ISSUES STATEMENT ON LIBRARY SKILLS IN EDUCATION

The National Commission on Libraries and Information Science (NCLIS) has recently issued a statement on "Libraries and Information Skills in Elementary and Secondary Education." The statement was approved unanimously by members of NCLIS, and was issued in reaction to the report, A Nation at Risk. The statement addresses the report's omission of any mention of the necessity for strong school libraries and library skills instruction in a viable educational program. Portions of this statement are quoted below:

"A basic objective of education is for each student to learn how to identify needed information, locate and organize it, and present it in a clear and persuasive manner. This objective should be realized in part through academic courses and in part through school library media centers which provide special opportunity for students to develop research and self-study skills and to build capacities for lifelong learning...School libraries should hold the materials to complement and supplement texts used in the various academic studies. They should introduce students to the use of their own and other libraries as places holding the record of our culture and resources for continuing reference and learning. A major criterion for the determination of excellence at any college and univeristy is the quality of its library and information resources; and, yet, the National Commission on Excellence in Education omitted any such criteria from the determination of excellence in elementary and secondary schools...The members of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science believe that each elementary and secondary school must have school library media services of strong quality. As the federal government, the states, local school districts and schools proceed with plans and actions for strengthening elementary and secondary education in the United States, we urge that each student be provided effective library information services. These services should be integrated with the student's entire program of studies and should be connected with services outside of the school - such as those of public, academic and research libraries. These services must be provided by elementary and secondary school personnel who are well qualified in library and information science and able to teach information skills and manage library resources in their schools. With these services in place for all students, the objectives of strengthening education proposed in the several reports can be met."

Richland County: The library's board recently adopted a $3.1 million budget representing a 35% increase over FY 84. The additional funds reflect significant increases in local funding and State Aid. The approved budget includes doubling of the materials budget from $400,000 to $800,000 and employment of additional personnel in the Information Services and Technical Services departments as well as staff for two new branches which were recently approved in a $1.55 million bond issue. The library is also currently involved in the acquisition of an automated system. This unprecedented growth for public library services in Richland County coincides with the library's 50th anniversary celebration....The library received a national award in recognition of its "Business Sector" newsletter which was named Best of Show in the newsletter category in competition sponsored by the Library Administration and Management Association (LAMA) of the American Library Association. The award was presented recently in Dallas during the ALA annual conference. The award certificate cited the newsletter as it "presents a straight forward approach to information relevant to the business community."

Spartanburg County: Industrial firms in the Landrum area recently donated a total of $2,735 in response to a fund-raising drive for the Landrum Library branch. Companies making contributions included South Carolina Elastic, Bonner Industries, Simkins Industries, and Bigelow-Sanford.

Union County: The library, in cooperation with the Union Theatre Association and the Union County Museum of History, presented a special theatrical performance, "Liberty Celebration '84" on July 3 on the library grounds. Artifacts of the Revolutionary War period from the museum were displayed at the library in conjunction with the program.

York County: In celebration of its 100th birthday, the library celebrated with an evening of activities held in the City Hall Plaza on July 20. Entertainment was provided by the Rock Hill Senior Citizens Band, a barbershop quartet, a clown, and mimes. Additional activities included phototaking sessions in old-fashioned costumes, silhouette cutting, and a display of high-wheeled bicycles. Refreshments included ice cream and soft drinks.

Focus on Children

From the Desk of the Field Service Librarian for Children's Services

PUPPETS AVAILABLE FOR LOAN

Puppets are now available for loan to public libraries in South Carolina from the State Library. There are animal and people puppets as well as puppet kits. The kits contain puppets, script, and cassette tape needed for a puppet show of well-known fairy tales. The request for a collection of puppets grew out of a puppetry workshop in the spring of 1984. The State Library hopes that providing puppets will help libraries to begin using puppetry in programs for children. The puppets will be loaned for one month to give libraries time to rehearse and do a show. Shorter and longer loans will be made upon request. Public libraries have been sent a list of available puppets. Any questions about this service should be sent to Jane Gardner Connor at the State Library.

Summer Activities for Children in South Carolina Public Libraries

A group of five local children recently worked up a play of The Reluctant Dragon and performed for about sixty children at the Florence County Library. It was so successful they will take it to Johnsonville and Pamplico libraries. The children chose the play and made their own costumes and props. Earlier this summer Jane McGregor and Philip Cheney toured the county doing The Judge by Harve Zemach as a play. On July 15, the library sponsored a Story Swap for teachers, librarians, parents, Brownie leaders, or anyone else to share stories. Each person attending was asked to bring a story to share using any approach they like including flannel board, puppets, drawings, stories, etc. Participants brought copies of their stories or the library duplicated them. Seventeen people attended and were delighted to have the opportunity to share and learn. The library hopes to do more of these in the future.

Janice Mahoney and Bettie Battle of the Kershaw County Library staff promoted summer reading with performances of "Jack and the Beanstalk" in the local schools. They used the puppet show from Nancy Renfro Studios. This summer, the library is having story hours for preschoolers, and story hours for children 6 to 10 with special events such as the visit from the Riverbanks Zoo, a local vet, and guest storytellers. The R.A.T.S. discussion group continues, and there is a Dungeons and Dragons group. Finally, the library is hosting a weekly family film night. For the summer, a large stuffed dragon is living in the children's room.

Spartanburg Nature Center Director John Green visited the Landrum branch of the Spartanburg County Library with live animals to share with the children. He demonstrated how the human heart works and how skulls illustrate animals' history.

Georgetown County Library's summer programs include such varied activities as karate-judo demonstrations, movies, break dancing, bird talks, and a magic show.

Barnwell County Library held a create-a-bookmark contest in connection with the DragonSummer Reading Program. The winning bookmark will be printed and distributed.

Children are exploring the arts at Pickens County Library this summer. Programs include storytelling, dramatic expression, crafts, mime, films, dance, and drawing. A local clown will also appear at a couple of programs. Various programs will be conducted by local and visiting guest performers and leaders.

Aiken County Library held a children's film festival using some of the featured films for children recently acquired by the State Library.

Beaufort County libraries each had the Carolina Herald Tom Sena, a professional storyteller from Charleston, as a guest performer during June. The visits were sponsored by the Beaufort, Bluffton, and Hilton Head Friends of the Library groups.

Getting Ready for Haley's Comet

The Children's Book Council has produced a full color wall chart complete with an explanatory text by author Seymour Simon and illustrations by Paul O. Zelinsky on historical and current information about the comet. The chart is 32 by 24 inches and costs $5.75. Order from CBC, 67 Irving Place, New York, New York 10003.

MacDonald's Grants

MacDonald's Corporation is offering $500,000 a year in Community Service Grants for "results oriented" projects and programs that aid the development of children beyond what is normally offered through school or community activities. Individual grants range from $500 to $10,000. For 1984 the emphasis is on art programs, education beyond the general curriculum, health and safety, and athletics. There is no deadline for application, but organizations may submit only one proposal per calendar year. The committee considering applications meets in April, June, August, October, and December. For details, contact: Robert Shropshire, Manager, Corporate Contributions, MacDonald's Corporation, One MacDonald's Plaza, Oakbrook, Illinois 60521. (From the Colorado State Library newsletter.)

RENOVATED LIBRARIES ELIGIBLE FOR BUILDING AWARDS

Renovated and rehabilitated library interiors will again be eligible for the Library Building Awards to be presented in 1985. The biennial awards, which encourage excellence in architectural design and planning of libraries, are jointly administered by the Library Administration and Management Association, a division of the American Library Association and the American Institute of Architects. Although the awards formerly concentrated on excellence in new buildings or new additions to existing buildings, reduced funding has led more libraries to renovate or rehabilitate existing structures. Consequently, the award has included such efforts since 1983.

Entries concerning new buildings, additions and renovations, or libraries that occupy portions of buildings or have been created from other structures are due by October 1, 1984. For further information and application forms, write Roger H. Parent, Executive Director, LAMA, American Library Association, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.
